Dressage is a fundamental process to develop through standardized training methods, a horse's natural athletic ability and willingness to perform, thereby maximizing its potential as a riding horse. This clinic will provide an overview of the basic dressage training methods used to help develop that communication between horse and rider and concentrate on improving gait. The clinician will help provide the basics for individuals including basic rider position, communication aids and application of Pyramid Training. The instructor will work with beginners as well as more advanced participants in a 100x200 outdoor dressage arena. Ride times will be assigned on a first come basis. Auditors are welcome and encouraged to attend.
